

Consumption Cured. THE JUDGE OF HANOVER COUNTY SPEAKS.

Tim. Howard suffered for three years with lung and throat troubles, and last spring was thought by his neighbors to be dying. I heard of his condition and gave him A. B. C. Tonic. Its effect was magical. In a very short time he was able to leave his bed, and now regards himself a well man. Others in this vicinity have taken the "Tonic" with pronounced benefit.

TOM AND KITTY.

Their pale blue smoke wreaths blent There played and strayed a boy and maid, Companions well content.
Together schoolward, shine or wet,
They trudged the cart ruis through;
Above one book their rluglets met;
One apple served the two.
And oft across the hedge you'd hear,
Or through the door ajar,
"Is Tommy here"—then means fear! "Is Tommy here then, never fear!

My Kitty won't be far."

If Tommy's knuckles chanced to ache,

For Kitty was not far.

But years flowed by with silent stree And work must follow play; Behind them like a land of dream

And Tom must sigh a long good by-

But when you pray, look up and say: 'My Kitty is not far,' "

Two years went by-for him, two years

Of range and change and stir;
Of hopes and fears, of pray'rs and tears,
And patient toil for her.
And then beside the old lych gate,
Two neighbors, looking out,
Beheld a sailor walk and wait.

Benedia a sinor wans and wan.
A cheery lad and stont.
"Tis Tom," one said; "be's getting wed—
God bless the honest tar!"
The other gravely shook her head;
"Then Kitty won't be fag;"

It soon came out that nearly every one present had been born in the state of Vermont and "raised" on a farm. But after going west they had all engaged in a variety of occupations.

One man said: "I went into real my25 tf. estate; then sold out and tried clerking it on a Mississippi steamboat; then went into the cattle business, and tired of it; packed up my goods and settled on a claim in Nebraska; quit that, and went to Texas to do business in a feed store; from there I went on the road for a boot and shoe firm, and just now I'm in the livery business."

"That's nothing," said another. "Tve been a school teacher, a post master, a preacher, a lawyer, a blacksmith, a notary public, a store keeper, a sheriff, a county superintendent of schools, a

At this point two or three men remarked that it was getting rather close in the store; they guessed they would go home, and they went out. Another man edged up to the door and said in a lazy tone that he thought his experience would beat the lot for variety. Some one asked him to tell it, and he

"I began life as a baby. From that I grew into a boy. While I was a boy I went to school, clerked it in a drug store, worked on a farm, had my arm broken in two places in a saw mill taught the district school one term and sung in the village choir.

The Chair Took a Notion to Stroll. The action of a chair which formed part of a display of furniture on a corner in one of the important cross town streets cansed no little wonderment one windy afternoon not long ago. The pavement in front of the store is smooth, and slopes to the gutter at a considerable angle. This chair, which had a solid back, stood right on the corner, and the wind, blowing squarely against it, caused it to slide gently to ward the gutter. The wind blew steadily, with just sufficient strength to move the chair at a slow pace.

The persons who happened to be looking out of neighboring windows or of passing street cars or carriages, and therefore did not feel the wind, could not imagine what had come over the chair, that it should thus gravely and sedately leave its fellows.

Even those who were on the sidewalk for the most part, never thought that the wind could be the cause of the phenomenon. A policeman across the way made up his mind that some thief had tied a thin wire to the chair, and was dragging it where he could put it into a wagon and drive off with it. The officer started toward the chair, and just then a clerk who had happened to see the runaway dashed out of the furniture store, recaptured the fleeing object and tied it to a big sofa. It took the policeman some time to understand the cause of the chair's pranks.—New York Trib-
